

Negotiating the curriculum WITH YOUR STUDENTS

Negotiating the curriculum with your students

The Negotiated Integrated Curriculum (NIC) involved teachers negotiating and enacting the curriculum with their students around student concerns. This approach can be used to

- design a curriculum from scratch, e.g. developing wellbeing curriculum in junior cycle or elements a Transition Year curriculum
- plan for learning an aspect of the curriculum - responding to a particular set of learning outcomes in a subject specification
- negotiate students' planning for Classroom Based Assessments (CBAs) in junior cycle or course -work assessments in Leaving Certificate.

Check out the material relating to NIC on the NCCA website for more details including a video about negotiating the curriculum with your students.